ILLINOIS 2002 303(D) LISTED WATER BODIES¹
LOCATED IN THE STUDY AREA

WATER BODY	DESCRIPTION
Illinois River	The Illinois River is designated as partially impaired for the following uses: overall use, aquatic life, fish consumption, and swimming.
Kickapoo Creek	Drainage from the northeast part of the study area, north of IL 116, flows to Kickapoo Creek. Kickapoo Creek is designated as partially impaired for the following uses: overall use, aquatic life, and swimming.
Canton Lake	Canton Lake, east of Canton, is the water supply reservoir for the City of Canton. It is designated as full use for overall use, aquatic life, fish consumption, and drinking water supply; and as partial use for swimming and boating.
Spoon River	Designated as full use for overall use, aquatic life, and fish consumption; and as partial use for swimming.
Big Creek	Big Creek flows through Canton and empties into the Spoon River. It is designated as full use for overall use, aquatic life, and fish consumption; and as partial use for swimming.
Slug Run	A tributary of Big Creek, Slug Run is designated as non-supporting for swimming, and partially supporting for overall use and aquatic life.
Coal Creek	Located north of Fairview, Coal Creek flows west-southwest into the Spoon River. It is designated as partial support overall and for aquatic life.
Drowning Fork	Drowning Fork, a tributary of the East La Moine River, is located west of Bushnell and flows generally to the south. It is designated as fully supporting for drinking water supply and partially supporting for overall use and aquatic life.

Note, causes of impairment for these streams are mostly from non-point sources and include resource extraction, agriculture, and stream and/or habitat modification.

¹ All the water bodies on this list have a medium priority designation.
